

High 66+ Wednesday November 8 Correct 53+

Weather, warm, but cloudy with indications of rain to night.

Worked all day dictating an opinion, and have done more work than during the past week.

Armand has gone back to Detroit. May & I took him to the depot this evening.

Election. The state has gone republican, but by greatly reduced majorities, and I am defeated with the rest. The presidential election is very close, and yet doubtful, but in my own mind I think it has gone to Hughes. It was heavily Hughes in the East, then came a swing of western states to Wilson, and at this writing we are not quite certain of the result.

As for myself, I do not feel the least disappointed or chagrined. I never expected to be elected, and feel almost relieved to be assured I am not. Ida does not seem disappointed either.
