

Wednesday November 8

High 66+

Lowest 53+

Weather, warm, but cloudy with indications of rain to night.

Worked all day dictating an opinion, and have done more work than during the past week.

Amund has gone back to Detroit. May & I took him to the depot this evening.

Election. The state has gone republican, but by greatly reversing majorities, and I am defeated with the rest. The presidential election is very close, and yet doubtful, but in my own mind I think it has gone to Hughes. It was heavily weighed in the East, then came a turning of western states to Wilson, and so this writing we are not quite certain of the result.

As for myself, I do not feel the least disappointed or chagrined. I never expected to be elected, and feel almost relieved to be assured I am not. Ida does not seem disappointed either.
